POST OFFICE WILL NOT BE REMOVED FROM DALY CITY

The rumor that the Daly City post office was to be removed to a site in San Francisco seems to have had no foundation in fact.

Following an investigation by members of the City Council of the rumor of the proposed removal, the report was made at the meeting of the City Council last Monday evening that the Daly City branch post office will not be removed, but that mail carriers hereafter will work out of Station F, located on Ocean avenue in the Excelsior district, and our present service and delivery of mail will not be curtailed in any way. This change in the carriers' system will take place on May 11, it was reported.

Bids were opened for street work, sidewalks, water mains and sewers in that district between the Jefferson high school and School street at Monday evening's special meeting of the City Council.

Eight bids were received, and after all were checked by the Council and city engineer, the California Construction Company was awarded the contract at a total figure of $80,974.50. Comparing the prices with former contracts in Daly City, the city engineer stated that the figures were very just and recommended its acceptance.

GALLAGHER GUEST OF LOCAL MERCHANTS

The regular monthly meeting of the Daly City Merchants' Association was held in the Daly City Auditorium on Wednesday evening and was attended by a number of Daly City's leading business and professional men.

Andrew J. Gallagher, chairman of the good roads committee of the San Francisco board of supervisors, was a guest of the association, and made an interesting address. Mr. Gallagher discussed the proposed plan of widening San Jose avenue from Sickles avenue to the point where San Jose avenue intersects Miission street. He announced that San Francisco had already completed plans for the widening of San Jose avenue from Sickles avenue to Mission street.

The outlet to the Junipero Serra boulevard from Daly City was also discussed by Mr. Gallagher. A definite point of outlet has not yet been decided on, ne said; that will be left entirely up to the residents of Daly City.

The address was thoroughly enjoyed by those present, and John J. Fahey, president of the Merchants' Association, in a few well chosen words, thanked Mr. Gallagher for his address, after which all adjourned to the Eagles Hall, where refreshments were served.

DALY CITY CIRCLE OF DRUIDS FORMED

A large group of grand officers and members from other circles attended the meeting. The installing officers were all Past Grand Arch Druidesses. After the installation refreshments were served in the banquet hall.

Following are the newly installed officers: Junior Past Arch Druidess, Miss Elizabeth Saame; Arch Druidess, Mrs. Madeline Fellows; First Bard, Mrs. W. Lantheaume; Second Bard, Mrs. Lillian Landini; Recording and Financial Secretary, Mrs. Eda Eade; Treasurer, Mrs. Ursula Vickers; Conductresses, Mrs. Victorine Bernardi and Miss Margaret Saame; Inside Guard, Mrs. Minnie Bernardi; Outside Guard, Mrs. Ethel Adams; Organist, Miss Cynthia Morgan; Auditors, Mrs. Hedvall and Mrs. Virginia Edwards; Trustees, Mrs. L. SALADA BEACH HAS ELECTION CONTEST

Results of the recent school trustee election at the San Pedro school district, Salada Beach, are contested by Cornelius Thomas, the defeated candidate, according to a statement of causes filed in the county clerk's office in Redwood City. The complaint is directed against Archibald Craig, the successful candidate. Thomas alleges malconduct on the part of the election board. He claims that Mrs. Lydia Fahey acted as an official in spite of the fact that she was one of the school trustees.

The election in this district was contested last year, also, declares Miss Pansy Jewett Abbott, county superintendent of schools.

JEFFERSON STARS WIN FIFTH GAME

The Jefferson All-Stars extended their winning streak to five straight victories by decisively defeating the City Soda Works baseball team by the score of 13 to 6.

C. Linhares and R. Perada were the heavy hitters of the day. In their slugfest they garnered four hits each in four times up. Every player on the team obtained at least one hit.

Chick pitched brilliant ball, allowing but seven scattered hits, and setting down seven batsmen via the strike-out route.

It is rumored that after Friday, Gene Keagle, pitching ace for the championship Jefferson high team, will take his turn on the mound for the All-Stars. With the addition of Keagle to the team, the All-Stars are all set to take on all semi-pro teams, and expect to afford them plenty of stiff opposition. The team is composed of an ambitious group of young ball players who have plenty of vigor and pep.

This Sunday the All-Stars expect to meet the Meyers Saftey Switch team from San Francisco.

SCENIC HIGHWAY PLANS PROGRESS

Plans for the construction of the scenic coast highway between San Francisco and Santa Cruz were a step nearer completion following a meeting of directors of joint high district No. 9, held in San Francisco.

Assurance that San Francisco would co-operate in the construction of any unit in the highway which met the approval of Santa Cruz County was given by Supervisor Andrew J. Gallagher, who presided as chairman.

Construction of the Waddell creek Devenport unit as the initial building operation was further discussed.

The estimated cost of building the highway is $5,280,000, of which San Mateo county will assume 30 per cent. San Francisco will be assessed 55 per cent and Santa Cruz 15 per cent.

On May 15 a public hearing will be held to discuss the proposed grade elimination on the Pedro mountain on the coastside.

CHAMBER ADVOCATES REDISTRICTING PLAN

Redistricting of San Mateo county, received the endorsement of the Burlingame chamber of commerce last Monday when the directors turned the matter over to a special redistricting committee with the request that a plan be worked out giving equitable representation to all the county. This committee will work on details with other redistricting groups of the county.

In response to a request from the Lion's club of Redwood City, that the Burlingame chamber of commerce consider the county charter form of goverment before completing plans of redistricting, the board of directors ordered a communication sent the club stating the attitude of the directors at this time.

The directors feel that the time is now favorable for redistricting and that there is no reason why the redistricting bill would interfere with the county charter form of government. They point to the delay necessary in drawing up a charter.

DEFER HEARING ON GREAT NORTHERN

Scheduled hearing by a joint supervisorial committee on a proposed resolution endorsing entry of the Great Northern Railroad into California on last Monday was postponed for two weeks at request of the Southern Pacific Company.

Inability of officials of the Southern Pacific to be present was given as the basis for requested postponement. Fred Sharpe, assistant manager of development for the company, urged continuance of the hearing for one week.

Representitives of the Western Pacific and Great Northern then declared for a two weeks' continuance, which was granted.

The new date of hearing was fixed for May 15.

AIRPORT GROWTH SHOWN BY REPORT

Mills Field, San Francisco's municipal airport, on Wednesday completed its second year of operation with a record of 50,322 flights and landings and 85,002 passengers.

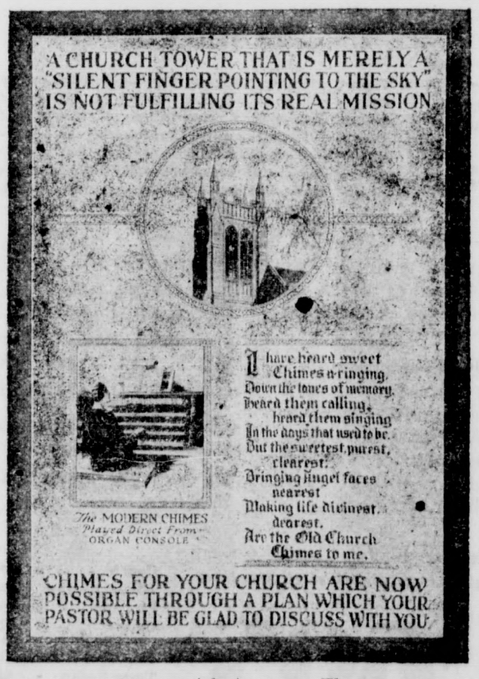
Figures for the year, according to an official report, showed an increase of 525 per cent in flights and 600 per cent in passengers over the airport's first year.

As against 8,077 flights and 12,350 passengers from May, 1927, to May, 1928, these figures showed there were 42,245 flights and 72,652 passengers from May, 1928, to May, 1929, the report showed.

The airport committee of the San Francisco board of supervisors has announced intention of submitting a $2,000,000 bond issue to the voters at the November election for the financing of purchase and improvement of the field.

The pulpit of Grace Presbyterian church will be occupied by Rev. J. R. Stevenson on next Sunday. The public is cordially invited to come and hear Rev. Stevenson. On Saturday morning, May 18, the Ladies Aid of Grace church will hold a food sale at the church.

CHIMES TO BE INSTALLED IN CHURCH



A CHURCH TOWER THAT IS MERELY A "SILENT FINGER POINTING TO THE SKY" IS NOT FULFILLING ITS REAL MISSION
The MODERN CHIMES Played Direct From ORGAN CONSOLE
I have heard sweet Chimes a-ringing,
Down the tones of memory,
Heard them calling, heard them singing
In the days that used to be.
But the sweetest, purest, clearest,
Bringing finest faces nearest
Making life dearest, dearest,
Are the Old Church Chimes to me.
CHIMES FOR YOUR CHURCH ARE NOW POSSIBLE THROUGH A PLAN WHICH YOUR PASTOR WILL BE GLAD TO DISCUSS WITH YOU

The great ambition of the parishioners of St. Maximus parish to have a set of chimes in the tower of their church which would call the hour for the whole community, also on national holidays play the national airs and hymns, may possibly be realized this year. These chimes would be an asset to all the people of Daly City and surrounding districts. A few prominent and influential people are interested in the project. However, it could be accomplished only through the co-operation of all.

Mothers of high school students will be honored at a program and tea to be given at the school next Friday afternoon by the Girls' League. Ever since the organization started under the advisorship of Miss Bessie Hoover, the girls have entertained the mothers on a date near Mothers' day. This year, the sophomore class is working on a play which they hope to present at the Girls' League affair, and committees of girls under Florence Kennedy and Elizabeth Saame are working on other plans for the party. The girls emphasize that their guests are to include the mothers of boys of the high school, as well as their own mothers.

The Honor J society, composed of students who have high scholarship, has made application to join the California Scholarship Federation, an organization of scholarship societies from the leading high schools of the state. Membership in the state group will enable the Jefferson students to keep in close touch with excellent scholars of other schools, and will give prestige in universities and in the business world to those whose work qualifies them for the organization. Under the Federation rules, a student who has been a member of the society for two-thirds of his school career is entitled to a club pin, a gold seal on his diploma testifying to his good work, and a similar gold seal on all college and business recommendations from the school.

TYPING STUDENTS ADVANCE RAPIDLY IN SPEED TRIALS

Carmen Bautista is showing steady improvement in typing, making 90 words a minute in her trial tests. Her highest record so far was 94, with but five errors.

Lillian Hauptli is showing excellent ability for a first year typist. She has brought her speed up to the 50's, having made 58 in her last test.

Clara Petrocchi, Frances Poket, Antoinette Sampino, and Lenore Wittmer are good second year typists. Lenore makes in the 60's. If a team of three is sent to the state contest, May 11, Mr. Pedley will send Carmen, Lenore, and one of the others if they bring their speed up high enough.

WINNING DIAMOND TEAM TO RECEIVE GOLD BASEBALLS

Pete Markovich, Paul Williams, and Mr. Edwards were appointed a committee of three by the executive council to see that the boys who made the baseball team receive gold baseballs, at a meeting held Friday noon.

It was also decided at this meeting that the yell leader should be given a megaphone block.

Jim Mullins brought up the question of basketball boys getting their blocks, and it was definitely decided that they will get them as soon as they can be ordered. Having the blocks made of different material was discussed because that used now gets fuzzy after being used awhile.

Blocks for the baseball boys will be taken up later.

SUMMER TRAINING CAMPS OPEN TO BOYS OVER 17

Boys of 17 or over are eligible to join the Citizens' Military Training Camps this summer, according to word received by Mr. Ferguson from Lieut. Col. William Scott Wood recently.

The camps this summer are to be held at Camp Del Monte, Monterey, July 2 to 31; Fort Winfield Scott, San Francisco, June 22 to July 21; and Fort MacArthur, Los Angeles, July 1 to 30.

The Lieutenant Colonel emphasized the fact that only young Americans of the highest character will be accepted at the camp. He also said that these camps have proven their worth by building sturdy physiques and developing alert minds, self-reliance, responsibility and moral courage in the trainees to a degree which recommends them to the public in general.

Boys who are interested in joining one of the camps for the summer may secure application blanks from Mr. Ferguson.

MUDERED MAN'S BODY FOUND NEAR ROCKAWAY BEACH

Officers of San Mateo county and San Francisco now seem convinced that the body of the man found near Rockaway Beach last Monday night is that of Rene Fabbri, also known as Rene Renaud, a dandy of the underworld and suspected white slaver. It also seems to be the general opinion that he was murdered as the result of a war between gangsters.

Detective James H. Coleman, of San Francisco, declared that the murdered man was Renaud, when he viewed the body at the Lasswell funeral parlors in Daly City.

The body was found near Rockaway Beach last Monday night. Walter Frey, driver for a bus company, made the gruesome find. Frey reports that he saw a pool of blood along the roadside. Four discharged cartridges were discovered near the pool of blood. A neskie clasp was engraved with the initials "R. F.," and a note, evidently in secret code relating in some manner to bootlegging activities was found in a vest pocket.

The body had been dumped over an embankment on the Coast highway about three miles south of Rockaway Beach. The actual murder is believed to have occurred on the road where the shells were found and from whence a trail was left to the cliff over which the body had been thrown, showing that the body had been dragged through the brush.

The man had been shot twice and his throat was cut from ear to ear.

Constable S. A. Landini was notified of the finding of the body by Frey, and supervised the removal of the body to the offices of Deputy Coroner Luella Pepper in Daly City. Dr. A. H. Rankin, autopsy surgeon, expressed the belief that the crime had been committed some time Sunday night.

With the identity of the victim believed to have been established, and with some inkling concerning the motive of the murder, a solution to the mystery and definite information concerning the killers seems near at hand.

Belief that his death may be linked with his supposed white slave activities is expressed by authorities as a result of clues discovered Wednesday.

Authorities declared if the slayer or slayers of Fabbri be found they will be held for San Mateo county authorities, on the theory that the murder was committed in San Mateo county.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

J. J. Gorman, representative of the Supreme Council, Knights of Columbus, addressed members and officers of Daly City Council No. 2712 at a special meeting last evening, held in St. Maximus parish hall.

Mr. Gorman is one of several special representatives who provide contact between the headquarters of the order here and more than 2,000 subordinate councils in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

Mr. Gorman's visit marked the first time that Daly City Council has played host to a representative of the Supreme Council, and a large number of the Daly City Council members turned out to hear him.

During the course of a year, the representatives of the Supreme Council travel thousands of miles in order to meet the officers and members of each Council. They offer suggestions and advice in the conduct of Council matters and in turn receive suggestions and information beneficial to the order at large. W. L. M.

VETERANS SEEKING ADDITIONAL FUNDS

Although more than $32,000,000 has already been loaned to World war veterans of California for the purchase of farms and homes, additional funds are needed to complete the program which the state has begun, George M. Stout, Secretary of the State Veterans' Welfare Board, notifies Assemblyman Morgan Keaton, chairman of the soldiers and sailors affairs committee which is steering bond issued through the state legislature.

The twenty million dollar bond issue will be submitted to the voters of California in November, 1930, according to the American Legion's plans and thus the funds needed to continue the loans to war veterans will be made available.

The state veterans' welfare board has loaned approximately $31,000,000 to war veterans for the purchase of homes throughout the various counties of the state and more than a million and a half dollars as loans on farm purchases, according to the figures submitted to Assemblyman Keaton and transmitted to the American Legion officials.

The average cost of more than 6,500 homes purchased by the veterans under the loan plan has been $4,732 while the average cost of about 285 farms has been around the $5,500 mark.

Under the terms of the loans, the veterans repay the entire sum advanced by the state together with interest so that the cost to the tax payers is nothing.

"NO DEFENSE" MAKES HIT AT THE EMBASSY THEATRE

"No Defense," the latest talking Warner Brothers Vitaphone picture, is now showing at the Embassy Theatre, San Francisco, and is being attended by large crowds. This is a thrilling romance of the Big Pine country and it presents four favorites of the screen in the principal roles. Monte Blue and May McAvoy are costarred, while Kathryn Carver and William Desmond occupy the main supporting roles. This picture, with the accompanying Vitaphone acts, will run only one week in order to make way for "The Desert Song."

France has four living former presidents, Loubert, 91; Fallieres, 88; Millerand 70, and Poincare,69.

WEEK OF UNUSUAL ATTRACTIONS AT THE DALY CITY THEATRE

Starting off a week of special feature attractions at the Daly City Theatre tonight, there will be a big double feature showing of Charles Murray in that hilariously funny First National special, "Vamping Venus," and Harry Carey in "The Border Patrol," a story of thrills and fast riding. Other attractions on the same bill will include the comedy "Reckless Rosie," and the Paramount News. "Silvernite" will also be a feature. At the matinee for the kiddies there will be added features with the serial and Love Nest Candy Bars.

On Sunday, playing continuous, performance starting at 1:45, "Snooky" White and his players will be seen in "The Island of Kazoo," a riotously funny stage attraction, with Snooky as the cannibal king. The screen attractions will be headed by Phillis Haver in "Chicago," a dramatic story of a jazz crazed wife, one of the season's tremendous hits for the screen. On the same bill Charley Chase will amuse in his latest laugh special, "Is Everybody Happy." Other subjects include the Fable, Topics of the Day, and the Fox News.

During the month of May, Monday night will be "Silvernite," in place of Tuesday, and many attractive film attractions have been booked to play on this night, the first of which is Irene Rich ad Warner Baxter and a brilliant cast in "Craig's Wife," a domestic drama of unusual power and appeal.

For Tuesday the Daly City will present Eric Von Stroheim's massive and stupendous special for Paramount, "The Wedding March," with an excellent cast of players, including George Fawcett, Maude George, Zasu Pitts and a host of others.

Wednesday will bring that very likeable fellow called the Prince of Peppy Things, William Haines, in "Show People," with Marion Davies and a host of equally famous players in one of the finest comedy presentations of show folk ever screened. On the same bill there will be a Comedy, Revue and News Reel.

Thursday will bring America's sweetheart, Mary Pickford, to the screen with Buddy Rogers, in "My Best Girl," while for Friday Dumbell and his Country Store, with vaudeville and "Diamond Handcuffs," with Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel, will be the film attractions.

Over-ripe bananas are now utilized in the manufacture of vinegar.

"THE BACHELOR FATHER" COMING TO CURRAN THEATRE

The presentation of a new Belasco play is always one of the outstanding theatrical events of any season in any community. The words "David Belasco Presents" are a beacon light of promise to theatre goers throughout the land. In the name "Belasco" is the spell of the theatre, and the theatre-going community follow its lights. It is a name that the public holds in reverence.

Probably no announcement of the entire season will be more plesantly received by California patrons of the really worth-while things of the theatre than the news that David Belasco is presenting a new and noteworthy comedy, "The Bachelor Father," from the pen of Edward Childs Carpenter, author of "The Cinderella Man," and numerous other plays, which will open at the Curran Theatre Monday, May 6, for a limited engagement.

Mr. Belasco is sending the identical original New York cast intact, the same that geve the play such popular vogue in the metropolis. June Walker, C. Aubrey Smith, and Geoffrey Kerr are the featured players. The supporting cast, selected by Mr. Belasco with great care, is one of unusual rdistinction.

The theme of "The Bachelor Father" is one that has wide appeal from the gallery to orchestra chairs. The play brings together a group of people who have an unusual relationship to each other. How this changes the course of their lives and eventually brings them unexpected happiness is told in a novel and enjoyable manner.

RATE REDUCTIONS SAVE MILLIONS TO CONSUMERS

Rates for both gas and electric service were reduced in 1928 to the extent of $2,300,000 annually to consumers. Of this amount, the company's annual report shows, approximately $2,000,000 covered voluntary reductions in electric rates and $300,000 cuts in gas charges.

The reductions in electric rates affected some of the most important departments of service-domestic, agricultural and street lighting.

"With one exception," says the report, "the company's top rate for electric energy for domestic purposes is now 5 cents per kilowatt hour in all cities and towns in which it operates and 6 cents per kilowatt hour in all rural territory. Rates drop to 1½ cents per kilowat hour for largers usage."

SAN MATEO INVITES STUDENTS TO ENTER MODEL AIR CONTEST

A delegation of three boys from San Mateo high school invited students from Jefferson, girls as well as boys, to enter a model air meet that their high school is giving Saturday morning, June 8, at a student body meeting called Thursday of last week.

Herman Jolin invited Jefferson students to enter the meet, and Harold Martin supplied information concerning the contest.

There will be three events to the contest: an outdoor flight duration contest sponsored by the San Mateo Times, a contest for the model plane sponsored by the Engineers' club, and an air derby, or 100 yard dash, sponsored by the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce.

Any boy under 21 living in San Mateo county can enter the contest. A fee of twenty-five cents must be paid for entrance into each event. Entrance blanks and contest rules can be found in the San Mateo Times. These blanks must be filled out and twenty-five cents enclosed for each event and mailed to the Engineers' club at San Mateo high school or handed in at the main office at the high school. The blanks must be in by June 1.

All model planes must be turned in for judging by 4 o'clock Wednesday, June 5, at San Mateo high. The meet will be supervised by the Engineers' club of the school. They are hoping to make this contest an annual event, and a great deal will depend on the success of this first meet.

"HEARTS IN DIXIE" AT THE MARION DAVIES THEATRE

In the new William Fox all-talkie sensation, "Hearts in Dixie," now showing at the Marion Davies Theatre, San Francisco, Movietone has turned out a picture that is one of the unique, and most entertaining productions of the year. "Hearts in Dixie" is rollicking at some moments, and intensely pathetic at others; it is among the most richly entertaining pictures that have ever been produced. The negroes have always been known as the most humanly emotional people in existence. "Hearts in Dixie" takes an accurate slice of their life and for two hours holds the audience enthralled.

It has been disclosed that a package containing $30,000 worth of diamonds was lost in the crash of a mail plane near Dixon, Ill., a few weeks ago.

On our own streets Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 21 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car ever tested.

ESSEX challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in.

That is why the big buying swing is to Essex. That is why motorists by thousands are switching from past favorites, and trading in their old cars for the big values Essex the Challenger gives. Essex challenges:

IN SPEED—challenging anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN FAST GETAWAY—any car regardless of size or price. IN RELIABILITY—60 miles an hour for hour after hour.

Essex offers a completeness of fine car equipment formerly identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price.

Check these items when you buy—they represent easily above $100 additional value in Essex.

Wide Choice of Colors at No Extra Cost.
The variety is so great you have almost individual distinction

Standard Equipment Includes: 4 hydraulic shock absorbers—electric gauge for gas and oil—radiator shutters—saddle lamps—windshield wiper—glare proof rear view mirror—electro-lock—controls on steering wheel—all bright parts chromium-plated.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The city council is planning to appeal to the railroad commission and the Santa Fe Railroad to place El Cerrito in either the Berkeley or Richmond shipping zones, in order to obtain the advantage of lower freight rates.

That contractors, architects and material men of Ventura county be given an opportunity to bid on all public work to be done within the city of Santa Paula, was adopted unanimously at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors recently. It was set forth that with many public buildings to be erected from time to time in the city and school districts nearby, opportunity for bidding should be accorded to local county people.

A net profit of $21,996.63 was made by the electrical department of the Modesto Irrigation District during March, according to the report of B. W. Creim, electrical engineer, filed with the board of directors. The gross income for the month was $41,347.47 and the expenditures were :Operation, $932.03; interest on bonds, $4,795.85; maintenance, $2,251, and depreciation, $6,371.68. Fifty-one new services and ninety-one meters were set during the month.

By an act approved in the Senate California will contribute $4000 a year as its share of the salaries paid the Superior Judges in each of the counties of the State. At present the proportion paid by the State in most of the counties much less than this sum and was fixed upon a sliding scale basis by the Legislature in 1927.

Peter Lorcarnini, owner of a bonded winery near Morgan Hill, is winner in a suit for the return of about $6000 in taxes collected for wine which he alleged was wasted. Lorcarnini testified that July 11, 1921, he found the bungs had been removed from several large vats of wine and thousands of gallons allowed to flood the floor and into the ground. John P. McLaughlin, internal revenue collector, insisted on collecting a tax on this wine. Lorcarnini sued for its return and won in a verdict.

Professor Graham Stuart of the political science department of the Stanford University, has been notified of his appointment by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace as visiting professor to a number of French universities next year. He will visit the universities of Toulouse, Montpellier and Poitiers. While in France he will continue his study of the government of Tangier, which he is pursuing under a grant from the fund which the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation has allotted to Stanfor for studies in the social sciences.

A good example of citizenship, which other Tulare county residents might well emulate, has been set by R. F. Henry, of Cutler District, according to Ned Boyer of the county traffic force. Henry called traffic headquarters and reported that he had damaged the highway near his ranch by crossing it with a tractor and a plow. He stated that a portion about three feet square had been damaged and asked that an officer be sent to examine the pavement and instruct him what should be done about it. The matter was referred to the supervisor of roads in that district for repairs.

A new Southern California industry has made its appearance at Fontana, adding a product never before perfected. Harry Criss, who owns and operates large citrus groves in Fontana, has been seeking a process for satisfactorily producing an orange syrup for four years. It now has become a reality. This new syrup will provide a new year-around industry. The product itself will remain fresh indefinitely, according to Criss. It can be used on waffles, ice cream sundaes and many delicacies adaptable for syrups. The company will be known as the California Orange Syrup Company, and the manufacturing plant is located ni a ten-acre grove on the Arrow Highway near Tamarind street, Fontana. This property was purchased by Criss in 1924.

Invitations have been sent to all communities in Central California to participate in the pageant parade at the fourth annual Diablo Valley Apricot Festival, which is to be held at Brentwood on June 30. There will be sections in the parade for floats and marching contingents from towns, civic organizations, fraternal organizations, and industries. Several of the nearby cities and towns have already notified the committee that they will have entries, and local organizations and individuals are making preparation for taking part on a scale so that they will not be outdone by the outsiders. Rivalry for the prizes to be awarded promises to be keen, and, as a result, the pageant-parade will be a spectacle of unsual size and interest for a community no larger than Brentwood.

The suit for an injunction by the city of Willow Glen, Santa Clara county, to prevent the Southern Pacific Company's constructing a line within the city limits is on file in Federal Court. The action was transferred from the Santa Clara County Court, and alleges the railroad company is attempting to construct tracks and operate trains through the town without asking a permit.

Work has been started on the new fisherman's wharf at Eureka which will be 300 feet in length and will adjoin the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's wharf.

MR. GIANT

"Oh," said Billie Brownie, as he arrived at old Mr. Giant's cave, "did I ever!"

"Did you ever what?" asked Mr. Giant.

"Your hat! The hat you are wearing," said Billie Brownie. "It is the funniest thing I've seen in all my born days.

"If you weren't so wise, so extremely wise, I'd say it looked like a dunce cap.

"Where did you ever get it, and why are you wearing it?"

"How do you know that I could always be free from wearing a dunce cap?" asked Mr. Giant.

"Now, now, Mr. Giant," said the Brownies, "that's a great joke!

"You couldn't be a dunce, if you tried for a hundred years."

"Well," said Mr. Giant, "you may be quite sure I won't try for a hundred years.

"If you're all so nice and think it would take longer than that for me to be a dunce I most certainly won't try!

"I don't suppose anyone especially cares to spend time trying to be a dunce."

All the Brownies laughed hard. But finally Billie Brownie spoke again.

"You still haven't told us just what that hat is for and why you are wearing it, all of a sudden, and all about it, for we have never seen it before."

"I will tell you the story of my hat," said Mr. Giant. "All gather around me."

The Brownies sat on the ledges and the flat parts of the cave, and some sat on Mr. Giant's lap, and others at his feet.

"It happened this way," said Mr. Giant.

"Many years ago I heard some little boys and girls saying, 'Oh, dear, what shall we play?' I thought to myself that I would put it into their heads just what to play and when they finished one game I'd suggest another and so on until they were tired out.

"But do you know I couldn't think of any games for them to play? I suggested one or two which they had played so often they didn't want to play again.

"I didn't let them see me, of course,

"Where Did You Ever Get It?"

but my echo whispered these suggestions to them.

"At last I was discouraged. I didn't know what to do.

"And who should come along to my cave but Witty Witch. You know we are such good friends.

"I told her my trouble, and she said,

"'Why don't you get a Cap such as I wear? Then you'll never be at a loss to think of something when you want to have bright thoughts and suggestions.

"'I wear my cap to make me think of stories for the Gnomes and the Brownies and the little Wood Creatures and the Fairies.

"'That is why I can tell them story after story. Because I wear my thinking cap and it does all the work for me.'

"So you see," continued Mr. Giant, "dear old Witty Witch made me this fine cap.

"And when you were coming along, on your way to call here, I was thinking of a springtime party we could have this very evening.

"I was planning the games we'd play, the supper we'd eat, and every little thing about the party.

"And my cap giving me such fine thoughts and ideas!"

"Are we to come to a party tonight?" asked Billie Brownie.

"Are we?" asked the others.

"Yes," said Mr. Giant, "and come promptly at eight o'clock this evening.

"Run along now as I must do the rest of my thinking and planning."

So they all went off, with a final look at Mr. Giant in his huge thinking cap, and they shouted happily.

"A party tonight, a party tonight."

Good Start

"And how's everything coming in your arithmetic class, dear?"

"Oh, fair," replied the little girl. "I can add the zeros all right, but I don't seem to do so well on the other figures."

JACK QUINN ON TWENTIETH YEAR

One of Few Remaining Spitballers in American.

Jack Quinn, one of the last of the fast disappearing race of spitball pitchers, is beginning his fifth year with the Mackmen and his twentieth in the majors.

Quinn, who is forty-two years of age, is already in good shape, having trained for two weeks at Hot Springs, Ark., before going South. He attributes his success to hard work. He was a breaker boy in the coal mines near Pottsville, Pa., before he took up basket ball and a strong physique has carried him through many years on the ball field.

"There are only a few of us still in the game," said Quinn. "Red Faber of Chicago and myself are the only two spitballers left in the American league. I believe Grimes of New York and Mitchell of the Cardinals are the only ones in the Nationals.

"Urban Shocker died last year and Bill Doak and Stanley Coveleskie have retired, so there are only a few remaining, but we still manage to get by and fool the batters.

"When the baseball powers ruled out the spitball seven years ago I think they had in mind to legislate only against trick pitching. I have always contended that few batters were ever hurt by spitball pitching.

"I see nothing mysterious about the spitter. Just take a baseball, moisten it a little on the side near the thumb and let the ball slip inward or away from you as you throw, depending on where you want it to go. That's all there is to it."

Gridiron Rules Makers Didn't Hit Their Mark

Coach Dick Hanley, head of the Northwestern university football staff, says that he believed the rules committee missed its mark when it moved up the try for point from the three to the two-yard line in order to stimulate triple-threat plays there.

"A power formation that can be counted upon to gain two yards readily won't yield field goals effectively," Hanley said. "There goes the triple-threat idea. Otherwise the yard difference won't materially change the try for point. It will be just as easy to make or miss a field goal from 12 or 13 yards and passing attacks will function the same there."

Hanley has been opposed to the new fumble rule since it was first brought up several years ago. He believes that the human element must remain in the game to maintain the fans' interests.

"I am not in favor of stereotyping the game," he continued. "Anything that removes the thrills from the game and detracts from the spectators' enjoyment is not an asset."

Rookie Ty Cobb Is Flivver in Minors

The name of Ty Cobb alone is not enough to assure success in baseball, one South Carolina lad has learned.

Seventeen-year-old Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who was named after the famous player, but who is no relation to the Georgia peach, tried out for an outfield berth with the Greenville club of the South Atlantic league. Failing to make the grade, he was released.

Shortstop Joe Sewell Turning to Third Base

Joe Sewell, shortstop of the Cleveland Indians for nine years, in turning to third base, is attempting to master his third position in baseball. Joey has been a shortstop so long, most followers of baseball suppose, perhaps, that he has always been a shortstop. As a matter of fact, when Sewell became a professional with New Orleans in 1920, he was tossed in at shortstop and had to learn a new position, for at the University of Alabama he was consistently a second baseman.

Joe told his reactions to the changes: "Yes, I had to learn to play short when I broke into professional ball," he said, "after I had always played second base in college. I learned to play it after a fashion and I expect to have just as good luck in mastering third base play."

Too Personal

"Tell me a story, mother, about fairies or goblins or imps," pleaded little Jimmie as bedtime approached.

"Well, once upon a time there was a little imp named Jimmie—" the mother began, humorously.

"Maybe you had better tell me a story about a fairy," the little boy interrupted.

There are several large green caterpillars which, when full grown, spin silken cocoons in which to pass the winter, transform to the moth state and finally emerge with all their splendor. These moths are known as Emperor Moths on account of their large size.

Within the Reach of every woman—health and strength. They're brought to you by Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is sold by druggists. It will build up, strengthen and invigorate the "run-down," nervous, or delicate woman.

One who has used it remarked: "In early womanhood I suffered severely at times with backache and other distress. Each month I had to stay in bed for almost a whole week. I grew thin and sallow and felt as though I had grown old before my time. I suffered from functional disturbances from the very start, and was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I found it to be strengthening from the very first bottle. I took it for several months and from that time to this have had no distress, have been a normal, healthy woman."—Mrs. Ethel Huntington, 332 Ivy St., San Francisco, Calif.

Aspirined

Billy received his quarterly report card, and as he had been absent because of a cold, which was treated with aspirin and the usual remedies, his marks were not quite as high as he wished. Sally, his five-year-old sister, wished to make him feel better, she said: "Remember, Billy, you were 'aspirined' those four days."

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

THE GANN MUDDLE

The average citizen has perhaps read of the social muddle in Washington with feelings of mingled amusement and disgust. It all arose over whether Mrs. Gann, sister of Vice-President Curtis, should sit or stand at social functions in the national capital.

Vice-President Curtis is a widower, so upon taking his present office he designated his sister, Mrs. E. Gann, as his official hostess, and insisted that she be accorded the same social rank and precedence as is ordinarily enjoyed by a Vice-President's wife. Mrs. Gann's husband, by the way, is also living in Washington and his presence tends to complicate the situation.

When members of the official social set objected to Mrs. Gann's occupying the position claimed for her, the matter was referred to the State Department and Secretary Kellogg, still in charge, ruled against her. When Secretary Stimson took Kellogg's place, Vice-President Curtis appealed to Stimson, who refused to pass on the question. Now the diplomatic corps have voted to give Mrs. Gann the precedence sought, while the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club have denied her that dignity. So, social Washington is decidedly up in the air over the matter.

One Senator has slyly suggested that the momentous issue be referred to the League of Nations. Anyway, the rumpus revives the old query: "Ain't people funny?"

SOFT TIRES COSTLY

Tests recently made indicate that by keeping automobile tires inflated at the standard guage recommended by the manufacturers from 25 to 30 per cent more mileage can be obtained.

Soft tires not only wear out quickly, but they damage the highway by their suction, which picks up the road surface. Jamming on brakes unnecessarily is also a cause of tire waste, as the treads are thereby ground into the road. A survey for road-builders in the state of New York is said to have shown that on main traveled roads the surface would assay about 8 per cent rubber after a few years of use.

Frequent testing of tire pressure takes little time, and proper inflation saves both tires and roadways.

MILITARY AIDES WORK

Useless ornamentation will play little part in the White House scheme during the next four years. Even President Hoover's military aides will be given something to do besides look handsome and resplendant in gold lace. Both Captain Buchanan of the Navy and Lieutenant-Colonel Hodges of the Army, the new military members of the president's entourage, will have desks in the executive offices, at which they will keep regular hours from 9 to 5 o'clock daily.

Heretofore the president's military aides have had no duties more exacting than that of standing alongside the chief executive at receptions, and assisting in the distribution of refreshments, likewise lending a touch of brilliance to his public appearance soutside the White House. Now it is said they will assist in maintaining close contact between the president and their respective military departments.

There is no doubt that the distinguished officers concerned will welcome the opportunity to be useful as well as ornamental.

FUTURE OF TALKIES

Much discussion is now going on concerning the effect talking motion pictures will have on the amusement industry. Some believe that this form of entertainment will largely supersede that furnished by living actors, while others hold a contrary view.

While sound pictures seem destined to play a most valuable and important part in the amusement world, people will always desire to see their favorite performers in the flesh. Besides, good actors and singers will reach a wider audience than they could ever reach in person, and thereby they may attain greater fame.

With the increasing wealth and leisure of the people as a whole, amusement enterprises of all kinds appear to have a secure place, so long as their offerings are worth going to see and hear.

As to the future of the talkies themselves there can be no doubt. The improvements and refinements in their production which have been witnessed during the last few months are a revelation. That still further developments for the entertainment and delight of their audiences will be made can not be doubted.

NEWSPAPERS AND RADIO

Considerable discussion is going on as to whether daily newspapers should publish radio programs as a part of the news of the day, or demand pay for such publication. And it is claimed that already the fear of giving someone a little free advertising has caused the programs to be mutilated so as to be hardly recognizable.

From the standpoint of readers who are also radio owners, the publication of these programs in an intelligible manner is a great convenience, and one of the most valuabel features of the newspaper, claim those who advocate publication of the programs.

They claim that it smacks of narrow-mindedness to omit these programs merely because printing the name of the business concern sponsoring a concert would give it a little free publicity. Besides, the radio industry and most of the firms putting programs on the air are very liberal users of paid newspaper advertising space.

Supplementing this argument, it is claimed that publishing the programs pleases the radio fans, who are most rapidly increasing in number. To them the daily program is real live news and they feel they are entitled to have it.

POST OFFICE SHAKE-UP

Postmaster General Brown has set for himself the task of putting the Post Office department on a more business-like basis, according to reports from Washington, and a general shake-up of bureau heads is the first step to be taken, some of the present officials to be let out and replaced by men considered more capable.

The new head of the department believes that by eliminating some of the bureaucratic methods which have grown up, the postal system may be made more nearly self-sustaining, and at the same time render better service to the public.

He has undertaken to fill a large sized order, but the taxpayers will wish him success in his endeavors. The country publishers and printers of the country would appreciate it if he would include in his program some means of getting the government out of the envelope printing business, which is manifestly carried on at a loss to the government, and the taxpayers.

SISTER TENNIS STARS

One of the strangest sport rivalries that has come to our notice is that between Sarah and Mianne Palfrey, sisters, for the girls' national indoor tennis championship, recently won by the latter. Sarah is 16; Mianne is 18.

For three years these two girls, who hail from Brookline, Mass., have battled for this title, which was won in 1927 and 1928 by Sarah. She also took the first set in the recent match, but Mianne, who was playing for the last time as a junior, rallied to take the remaining two sets and the championship. Then, the singles title being settled, the two sisters paired to successfully defend their national doubles championship, winning easily over their opponents.

That two sisters should hold undisputed claim to the highest national honors for three successive years is most unusual, to say the least. Playing as opponents they fought each other to a finish. Paired together, they were invincible against all comers. Wonderful little tennis stars, those Palfrey girls.

Only once did I come anywhere near the truth, and then it slipped past me, and I did not catch it. That was on the night he sent for me, after he had struck Gordon down. He was frightened that night, we know now. Gordon was suspicious; might even have gone to the police.

And that night he tested his disguise and me. . . .

Much of the explanation of that tragic summer becomes mere surmise, naturally. There is no surmise, however, necessary as regards Cameron's coming to the third seance, at my invitation. So far as he knew, we still believed that Simon Bethel was dead. That our circle, so innocent in appearance, so naive, was a cleverly devised trap seems not to have occurred to him. My frankness, the product of my ignorance, would probably have reassured a man less driven by necessity than he was.

But even had he suspected something, I believe he would have come. His other attempts, to enter the house and secure the manuscript, had failed. And any day some bit of mischance, a mouse behind a panel, a casual repair, and this book of his, with its characteristic phrasing, its references to his earlier works, would be in the hands of the police.

With what secret eagerness he accepted my invitation we can only guess. Halliday, carefully plotting, had already discounted his acceptance in advance.

"I knew he would come, of course," he says. "He wanted to get in. We offered him not only that, but darkness to cover any move he wanted to make. It had to work out."

And here he explains the necessity of having the criminal caught flagante delictu. It had to be shown, he says, not only that Cameron had written the manuscript, but that it was he who had hidden it where it lay.

"The case against him stood or fell by that," he says. . . .

But aside from this, much of the explanation of that tragic summer becomes pure guesswork. We have, however, elaborated the following as fulfilling our requirements as to the situation:

We know for instance that on old Horace Porter's developing interest in spiritism, Mrs. Livingstone referred him to Cameron. But we do not know why that interest developed.

Is it too much, I wonder, to say that the house itself led him to it? In this I know I am on dangerous ground, and it becomes still more dangerous if one grants that Mrs. Livingstone's gift of a red lamp led him to experimenting with it.

We do know, however, that after he had had this lamp for three months or so, he got in touch with Cameron, and it seems probable that such experiments as were made there at night with this lamp roused Cameron to fever heat.

Mrs. Livingstone believes there was a pact between them, the usual one of the first to "pass over" to come back if possible. We do not know that, but it seems plausible. Neither Halliday nor I believe, however, as she does, that Cameron killed the older man, in a fit of rage over the rejection of his proposal to carry their investigations to the criminal point.

What seems more probable is that Cameron had very early recognized the advantages of the house for the psychic and scientific experiments he had in mind, and that he finally submitted the idea to old Horace. With what growing horror and indignation they were received we know from his letter.

They turned a possible ally into an angry and dangerous enemy; the rejection of the proposition, with the threat which accompanied it, left Cameron stripped before the world as an enemy to society. He went home and brooded over it.

"But he couldn't let it rest at that," Halliday says. "He went back. And the old man was at his desk. There was danger in Cameron that night, and the poor old chap was frightened. We'll say he crumpled his letter up in his hand, and Cameron didn't see it. Maybe there was an argument and Cameron knocked him down. But he got up again, and he managed to drop the letter into an open drawer; after that, his heart failed, and he fell for good."

We acquit him of that. Of the others—" . . .

We are, with regard to the underlying motive, the so-called experiments, again obliged to resort to surmise. We know, for instance, of Cameron's early experiments in weighing the body before and immediately after death. He has himself recorded them. But in the manuscript of his book he distinctly states his belief that the vital principle, whatever that may be, is weakened by long illness, and his belief that those who pass over suddenly out of full health, are more able to manifest themselves.

He quotes numerous instances of murdered men, whom tradition believes to have returned for motives of vengeance. But he himself believes that this ability to return is due to the strength of the unweakened vital principle. The whole spirit, he calls it. And although his manuscript in itself does not deal with any discoveries he may have made during the summer, there are accompanying it certain pages of figures which seem to prove that he made more than one experiment along those lines during his occupancy of the house.

What waifs and strays he picked up on those night journeys of his we do not know; poor wanderers, probably, with no place in the world from which they could be missed.

At the same time, Halliday feels that the experiments were not necessarily to be with life and death; he suggests that they were to lie, rather, in deep narcosis, pushed to the danger point, and that it was under this narcosis that Maggie Morrison, for one, succumbed.

Among Cameron's papers, later on, we found a curious document entitled, "The Reality of the Soul Through a Study of the Effects of Chloroform and Curari on the Animal Economy," with the note in Cameron's hand:

"The soul and the body are separated by the agency of anesthesia. The soul is not a breath, but an entity."

Of the nature of the further tests made we have no idea. Halliday believes that, shown the space behind the wall by Horace Porter, he later utilized it to conceal such apparatus as he used in his experiments.

"It seemed to be full of stuff," he says, "the night I found it."

But later on, as the chase narrowed, he got rid of it bit by bit at night, probably throwing it into the bay. This is borne out by the fact that, late that following autumn, going back to Twin Hollows to look over the property with a real estate dealer, I found washed up on the beach the battered fragments of a camera.

Only a portion of the lens remained in the frame, but this lens had been of quartz. As nearly as I can discover, the theory of quartz used in such a manner is to photograph the ultra-violet. In other words, I dare say, to make visible that strange world which may lie beyond the spectrum and our normal vision.

Did he obtain anything? We shall never know.

But sometimes I wonder. Suppose a man to have done what he had done to prove the immortality of the soul; to have taken lives and have risked his own, to give to the world the survival after death it so pathetically craves. And he fails; there is nothing. His own conviction has not weakened, but his proofs are not there.

Then, in the twinkling of an eye, he himself breaks through the veil. With that idea dominant, he passes over to the other side, perhaps to the long sleep, perhaps not. But in that instant between waking and sleeping, to prove his point! To make good his contention; To justify his course!

I wonder.

And I wonder, too, if at that moment of realization the supreme irony of the situation could have occurred to him? That the wounded hand, the one injury poor Gordon had managed to inflict on him, was the factor which had shot him, head foremost, into eternity? . . .

Was Cameron our sheep-killer? We believe so, with certain reservations. We know he was at Bass cove, under an assumed name, at the time, probably looking over the ground.

At the same time, it seems unlikely that he killed the first lot of Nylie's sheep; that we believe was an act of revenge on the part of a man Nylie had recently discharged.

But that the idea seized on his imagination seems probable. He was planning that mad campaign of his, and it fell in well with what was to come. It prepared the neighborhood, in a sense, but it set them looking for a maniac with a religious mania. And it was an effective alibi for him, occurring before his arrival at the house.

Jane has always believed that he added the symbol in chalk deliberately to incriminate me. I do not. He added it, after Helena Lear had told him of it, as he added the stone altar, a madman's conception of a madman's act.

Carroway's murder was incidental to that preparation of his, but in view of all we know, we can reconstruct it fairly well.

Thus we have the boy, tiring of carrying his rifle, putting it away in the darkness and possibly dozing. We have the appearance of the killer, and Carroway unable to locate his rifle quickly, following him to the waterfront and reaching to too late.

Underneath our float the killer should have found his knife, but as we know, Halliday had taken it away. They were two unarmed men, then, who met that night on the quiet surface of the bay. And one of them, although nobody knew it, was not sane.

Unarmed only in one sense, however, for Cameron had an oar. And used it.

When it was over, he apparently rowed back quietly to the creek beyond Robinson's point, left his boat there, and walked to Bass cove.

The proprietor of the small hotel there seems never to have known that he was out at night.

"He was a very quiet gentleman," he says, "and always went to bed early." . . .

One thing which had puzzled us, in the Morrison case, was that the girl had stopped her truck, at a time when the nerves of the countryside were on edge. It seems probable, therefore, that on some nights, at least, it was not the square and muscular Cameron who went forth, but an old crippled man.

Shown to her by the lightning flashes that night, age and infirmity by the roadside and a storm going, what wonder that she stopped? The only marvel is that, this bait having proven successful, it does not appear to have been used again. . . .

Much that impressed me strongly at the time has lost its impression now. It is a curious fact that a man may see a ghost—and many believe that they have done so—without any lasting belief in so-called survival after death. And so it is with me.

On editing my Journal, however, I find myself confronting the same questions which confronted me during that terrible summer.

Cameron Had an Oar and Used It

Have I a body, or is my body all there is of me? In other words, am I an intelligence served by certain physical organs? Or am I certain physical organs, actuated by an intelligence as temporary as they?

Frankly, I do not know.

But any careful analysis of the extra-normal phenomena of the summer seems to show, every so often, some other-world intelligence, struggling to get through to us. As though—

We have never had, as I have said, any explanation of the coming of the book during the second seance, nor of the sounds from the library. While much of the physical phenomena of the first two seances was deliberately engineered by Mrs. Livingstone, in pursuance of Halliday's plan to get Cameron into the house, these two things remain without explanation.

The same thing is true of my finding of the letter, of the lighthouse apparition, of the sitting at Evanston, and of Jane's clairvoyant visions. None of which, by the way, she has had since. And yet all of which had their part, large or small, in our solving and understanding of the crimes.

Peter Geiss, and the figure in the fore-rigging of the sloop, my own vision of Cameron at the foot of the stairs, when he lay dead behind the panel, what am I to say of these?

Am I to accept them as I do Jane's "vision without eyes" as no more extraordinary than the feats of somnambulists, who go through their curious nightly progress with closed eyelids?

Am I to accept them, refute them, or evade them? . . .

There are, however, certain incidents which, puzzling as they were at the time, lend themselves to very simple explanation. Among these are the cough I heard more than once, and Hadly's story of the materialization in the Oakville cemetery.

Throughout Gordon's diary, here and there, were the letters S. and G. T. There was also, in one place, a sentence which translated, became "The G. P. stuff went great last night."

Halliday believes that Gordon was what we know as a medium, and that it was in that capacity primarily that Cameron took him to the country. The S. he therefore translates as "sitting," and the G. T. as "genuine trance." After the G. T. there almost invariably follows the rather pathetic entry: "Feel rotten today," or "all in."

Hadly's ghost, then, in all probability was the secretary, securing data for the "sittings" which he so carefully differentiates from the nights when he went into genuine trance. Being honest with himself, poor boy, and honest nowhere else. And the same was no doubt true as to the dry cough which he practiced on me, the night I was in the garage.

It was during those "sittings," too, almost certainly, that under pretended control from beyond he began to ferret out, with the cunning of his kind, the story underneath; to bring back Horace Porter, and watch the reaction; to mention the boat he had discovered, and see the man across from him, in the dim red light, twitch and tremble.

To play him, to fool him, and at the last to threaten and blackmail him. And, in the end, to die.

But there remain these things I cannot explain. One of the most curious is the herbal odor; that this was not a purely subjective impression is shown by the fact that both Hayward and Edith noticed it during the second seance. The scent of flowers is, I believe, not unusual during certain psychic experiments; Warren speaks of the impression of tuberoses being waved before him in the dark by some ghostly hand.

Of this, as of the other inexplicable phenomena, I can only say that at the time I did not doubt them; living them again, as I prepare this manuscript, I accept them once more. But I do not explain them.

"You wish," said Cicero, "to have the explanation of these things? Very well . . . I might tell you that the magnet is a body which attracts iron and attaches itself to it; but because I could not give you the explanation of it, would you deny it?"

In closing this record, I cannot do better than copy the following extract from my Journal, made the following June:

June 1, 1923.

Our little Edith was married today Heigh-ho. And again, heigh-ho.

How we begrudge the happiness of others when it is at our expense! How I hated Halliday when, once in the house, he put his arms around her and held her close. How I resented that calm air of possession with which he took his place in the line beside her, and shook hands smilingly with the hysterical crowd that kissed and blessed them, on the way to the dining room and food.

And yet—how happy they are, and how safe she is.

"My wife," he said. "Forever and ever. Amen."

Old glass and new glass; china, silver and linen; the Lears' candlesticks; every corner of the house filled with guests and gifts—and Jock. And for the two of them nothing and nobody; just a space filled with shadows which smiled and passed; themselves the only reality.

And perhaps they are. Love at least is real; the one reality perhaps. "Love thou art absolute; sole lord of life and death." . . .

So they have gone, and tonight Jane and I are alone. Safe and quiet—and alone, alas.

Heigh-ho!

Operator Cut In on Concert for Invalid

A young man of the city, confined to his home with a bad throat, answered his telephone sometime after midnight recently. Three girls of his acquaintance announced that they had prepared a concert for his exclusive entertainment, and that he should "please stand by."

The girls then put their telephone at one end of their piano, and got a ukulele to fill out the harmony. All three of them (semiprofessionals, by the way) sang to the soft accompaniment, doing all the popular songs of the moment, to the unbounded joy of the sick young man, who had been dying for company all evening. They continued for the better part of an hour, when suddenly an operator cut in, presumably to find out why they were holding the phone so long. She had begun a sharp tirade when the music got the best of her. She listened silently and then in a minute she broke in and requested a song.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

New Breed

Dorothy had always wanted a dog, and at last a kind and sympathetic uncle gave her one.

There was a certain amount of discussion among the family with regard to the animal's breed. The uncle declared the dog was an airedale.

Meeting a friend of her father one evening while taking her pet for a walk, Dorothy had an anxious moment.

"Whatever is it?" the other had asked. "A pup, Dorothy? What kind, my dear?"

The little girl tried hard to remember what her uncle had said.

"He's a ne'er-do-well," she replied, after a long pause.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

The noblest life is the life that loves, that gives, that loses itself, that overflows, as it were, irrigates the great fields of human anxiety and toil; the warm, hearty, social, helpful life; the life that cheers and comforts, and sustains by its serenity and patience and gratitude.

SMALL CAKES

Everybody likes a filled cooky and the following is one you will make again and again:

Filled Pineapple Cookies.—Beat two eggs, add one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of shortening, two tablespoonfuls of milk, three cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful lemon extract. Mix as usual, roll out with any fancy cutter. Place the filling on one and cover with another. Then sprinkle cinnamon and sugar well mixed, over each before putting into the oven.

Filling.—Take one tablespoonful of flour, one egg, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of grated pineapple and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Cook until well blended and the starch well cooked; add one tablespoonful of butter and cool before using.

Surprise Cakes.—Take one-half cupful of shortening, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, three beaten eggs, two and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour, two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of lemon or vanilla flavoring, mix as usual and bake in muffin tins. When cool remove the top, scoop out the center and fill with a cooked, cooled cream, whipped cream or a combination of fruit and cream. Ice with frosting, or chocolate and decorate with chopped nuts.

Frosted Caramel Squares.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar, two well beaten eggs, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat the white of one egg and fold in one cupful of light brown sugar, flavor with one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Spread the first mixture on a baking sheet, sprinkle with finely chopped walnuts. Spread the second mixture over the nuts. Bake for twenty minutes in a slow oven. Cut into squares when cool.

Baked Spiced Pudding.—Mix two cupfuls of flour with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one egg well beaten, one teaspoonful of vanilla, two-thirds of a cupful of raisins. Pour into a shallow baking dish well greased and bake in a moderate oven. Serve cut into squares with any desired sauce.

Salads and Sandwiches.

When fresh pineapples are the most plentiful in the market, is the time to use them more freely.

Pineapple Salad.—Wash a medium sized pineapple and cut it into half, lengthwise, except the leaves—keep them intact. Scoop out the pulp and cut it into cubes. Cut up one grapefruit, two apples, a stalk of celery, add the pineapple cubes and one tablespoonful of chopped pimento; mix with one cupful of mayonnaise and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Fill the pineapple shell and serve on a bed of lettuce.

Cucumber Salad.—Wash three cucumbers and cut into halves lengthwise. Carefully remove the inside of the cucumber and cut into slices. Take one cupful of chopped tuna fish, a grating of onion, season with a bit of french dressing and refill the cucumber boats. Garnish with tender celery stalks for flag pole and sails. Serve with mayonnaise.

Tomato and Shrimp Salad.—Wash and score even sized tomatoes into six petals to form a flower. Chill and fill the center with shrimps mixed with celery and a well seasoned dressing. Serve on water cress.

Vegetable Sandwiches.—Scrape six new carrots, add one medium sized unpeeled cucumber, four stalks of celery, one seeded green pepper and one-fourth of a small cabbage. Put all through the meat grinder, add enough salad dressing to moisten and use on buttered white bread for sandwiches. A bit of onion improves the flavor. Splendid for a sandwich that must be made a few hours before eating. Keep cold.

Combination Sandwich. — Grind equal quantities of dates, almonds and American cheese. Add enough lemon juice to make of the right consistency to spread. Use as filling or as topping for open sandwiches. If the sandwiches are served open garnish with a piped border of cheese and whipped cream.

Sweetbread Salad. — Parboil in slightly acidulated water a pair of sweetbreads, drain and dip into ice water to chill. Remove all the membrane and pipes and cut into small pieces; add an equal quantity of celery cut into dice and serve with a rich highly seasoned mayonnaise dressing.

YOUR BANK AND HOW TO USE IT

Women's Banking Department

Although the offices of the women's banking department of the Bank of Italy are confined to San Francisco and Los Angeles, the business of these offices is by no means limited to these two cities. It can be said to be nation-wide. Also every branch of the Bank of Italy has full information regarding the service of the department and can provide for the extension of that service to any customer.

The department is a bank all by itself, managed and staffed solely by women and with its list of depositors and other customers confined solely to members of the fair sex. This distinctive and highly successful bank was designed to cope with the many fiancial problems peculiar to women, to offer them substantial and profitable advice on household financing, to help them budget their household and business expenses and to give them the right sort of counsel along business lines.

In the first seven years of its existance, this bank accumulated nearly $8,000,000 in deposits and achieved a customer list of approximately 20,000. Its quarters in San Francisco and Los Angeles are complete banking establishments and it is not necessary for the ordinary depositor there to contact with any other department of the Bank of Italy. All investment matters are handled by woman experts also. Credit and trust transactions are negotiated by the women officers, but their actual operation is handled by the Bank of Italy itself through the appropriate departments.

The women's banking department has added many strong safeguards to women's sphere, the home. Its appeal is directed particularly to the woman confused by the ways of finance, the bewildered wife or mother who is left with the family financing on her hands and does not know which way to turn, and the woman who is seeking protection from bad investments or the plotting of those who would take advantage of her ignorance in financial matters.

All women are cordially invited to avail themselves of the specal and distinctive service of this progressive department and of expert advice from trained and sympathetic officers who have studied the needs of housewives and women in business and the professions.

Securities Division

The investment branch of the Bank of Italy is operated as the securities division of the National Bankitaly Company, which is identical in ownership and management with the bank. The present organization is the outgrowth of the bank's bond department, formed shortly after the organization of the parent institution to supervise the purchase of its bonds. These have always constituted an important part of the bank's investments.

This department later was extended so that its service might be available to customers of the bank and the general public. As a result the same safeguards were set up for them as had been applied to the bank's own investments. The bank was an outstanding factor in the sale of United States Liberty Bonds during the war and since that time it has been the largest dealer in United States government securities on the Pacific Coast. Since the war, the expansion of the department has been rapid and it takes rank today with the leading investment institutions in America, having a private wire connecting with eastern financial centers, and branch offices in leading cities of the country.

The securities division of the National Bankitaly Company is engaged in the analysis and distribution of government, municipal and corporation bonds and investment stocks. In this way it has taken an important part in the upbuilding of the communities which it serves, furnishing capital to borrowers whose obligations have proven of merit after being sujected to the bank's rigid scrutiny.

The primary function of this department, however, is to efficiently and aqequately meet the complex investment problems of the investor. To this end the department has placed every modern facility at the disposal of its clientele. Investors listing their holdings will receive valuable information concerning them and may have the benefit of periodical analyses of their investment position. Constantly changing conditions make this necessary, if the investment account is to be successfully handled.

In short, the individual investor will fnd every feature of a modren and efficient investment service, coupled with the experiences and facilities of one of the country's leading financial institutions. Every depositor of the bank should take full advantage of this service.

GOVERNOR SIGNS PENOLOGY BILL

In order to secure greater efficiency in the handling of the state's many and varied crime and penal problems, Governor C. C. Young has signed Senate Bill No. 568, by Senator Edwin Mueller, creating a state department of penology.

The bill, an integral part of Governor's Young reorganization program, combines five existing divisions of the state goverment under one department, the director of which shall be a member of the governor's council, thus merging the activities of these divisions directly with the central point of administrative authority.

The new department will be composed of the following: Division of Prisons and Paroles, Division of Criminal Identification and Investigation, Division of Pardons and Commutations, Division of Narcotic Enforcement, and Division of Criminology. A primary purpose of the bill is stated in a section requiring that rules and regulations shall be promulgated "that will tend to eliminate everlapping and duplication of the activities of the several divisions."

TRANS-AMERICA PAYS DIVIDEND

Trans-America Corporation is distributing its first divedend, aggregating $20,000,000—represented by the quarterly payment of one dollar per share and a stock dividend of one per cent.

Stockholders will receive, in addition to the dividend check itself, a fractional warrant or stock certificate—and in some cases, both. More than 20,000 of the group will receive whole certificates, while 125,000 will be mailed frctional scrip. Since the scrip does not have to be presented for a period of five years, stockholders will not be forced to dispose of it at once, or purchase additionl fractions, but my accumulate the warrants as subsequent dividends are paid. At the current market, the present qurterly dividend is worth $2.30—or more than the total regular annual dividend of $2.24 paid by Bancitaly Corporation.

Although the board of directors of Trans-America has as yet taken no formal action with respect to the continuance of the stock dividend, it is known that A. P. Giannini, president of the corporation, looks with favor upon such distribution, either on a quarterly or semi-annually basis. At the time the current dividend was approved he expressed the opinion that the arrangement would be made permanent with the possibility that the entire dividend might ultimately be paid in stock. Should this plan receive the approval of the directors, it would mean a return of 7 per cent on the present market price of the stock.

In preparing for the payment of this first dividend, the offices of Trans-America have handled in excess of 20,000,000 items evidencing ownership of securities, and have passed through the books of the corporation some fuor billion dollars of entries. A staff of 700 clerks has been engaged in the work, operating on a 24-hour schedule with three shifts of eight hours each.

EARNINGS OF HUDSON MOTOR COMPANY RISE

Hudson Motor Car Company reports net earnings for the three months ending March 31, of $4,567,783, or $2.86 a share on its 1,596,660 shares outstanding. This is the largest first-quarter earnings in Hudson's history, it is announced, comparing with the following figures: $4,207,373 in 1928, $4,026,516 in 1927, $2,746,023 in 1926 and $3,826,932 in 1925.

William J. McAneeny, president of the company, said in connection with the report: "Not only were our earnings for January, February and March the largest first quarter total we ever have known, but our present sales situation and our prospects for the year are correspondingly favorable. Since the middle of February our plants have been operating at their top capacity of 1,900 cars a day, or around 45,000 a month, and yet a survey of stocks of cars in the hands of distributors and dealers shows that the number is below normal.

"Not only have domestic sales reached a new high record, but our shipments of 11,585 cars overseas and 6,178 to Canada were the best we ever have known in a first-quarter period.

"Our judgment of this year's automobile market is that it is highly selective, with active business largely awarded by the public to companies with products of particular appeal. Planning for this sort of year last autumn, we made our 1929 cars better and more completely equipped than ever before, yet priced more moderately. Undoubtly, the present record business done by ourselves and distributors and dealers is the result of this policy."

Repopulation of Germany is going forward rapidly, and none is contributing more patriotically than Frau Zoellner of Demmin. At the age of 28 she is the mother of 18 children, four sets of quadruplets and two singles, all born during the last nine years.

BEACH ESPLANADE NEAR COMPLETION

"San Francisco is nearly ready to show visitors from all over the world the finest stretch of highway ever constructed, with several features unique in the history of road building. Many of San Francisco's civic achievements have attracted universal admiration, but this latest evidence of our city's eminence will rank second to none of our proudest municipal possessions."

That is the enthusiastic declaration of Supervisor Andrew J. Gallagher, chairman of the city's street committee, in announcing plans for an official celebration to mark the opening, within a few weeks, of the Great Highway and Ocean Beach Esplanade, costing more than $1,000,000 and financed from the $9,380,000 highway bond issue voted by the people of San Francisco.

The big project is virtually completed now, Gallagher states, and awaits only the erection of lighting standards, to be selected by the board of supervisors.

At one point in the new road, from Fulton street to beyond the Beach Chalet, will be a 201 foot stretch of highways, the widest in America. An underpass, permitting pedestrians to walk from the Chalet to the Beach, without encountering traffic, and an adjacent equestrain ramp are among the engineering features of the project that have attracted widespread interest.

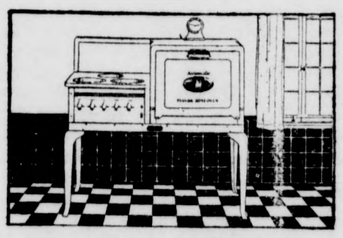
4¢ worth of electricity cooks the dinner for 4 people



How the electric range improves cooking! Tender, juicy browned roasts with all flavor sealed in. Steaks broiled without smoking. Cakes fine in texture. Pies with delicious, flaky undercrusts. Such cooking you can do with less effort electrically, because the electric range is fully automatic.

The new porcelain enameled electric ranges are speedy. Biscuits, for example, are put into cold oven. They are done perfectly in about 11 minutes.

ABOUT 1c per person, less than the price of the coffee itself — that's the AVERAGE cost of cooking a family's meal with an electric range. Perhaps you never believed it to be so economical.

But remember, the electric rates were cut about a year ago. And today the price of electricity is below the price of electricity in the year 1914, although the cost of other things rose skyward as you well know.

What is the monthly cost?

A survey among our customers' accounts shows that the AVERAGE sum paid by our customers for cooking electrically, including lighting and small appliances, is but $5.76 per month! An amazingly low price for modern comfort, cleanliness and perfect baking.

Come in to our office or a dealer's store and see these modern electric ranges that are so reasonable to operate.
